

Airforums.com Inspection Report

Many members of the Airforums offer their services as volunteer trailer inspectors. Inspectors have varying levels of experience and expertise. Inspections are not guaranteed in any way and neither the inspector nor the Airforums guarantees the accuracy of the inspection. Use this information as you wish, but understand that there is no substitute for doing your own first hand inspection and that inspections are always subjective..

Inspectors will let you know how far they are willing to travel to look at a trailer and you should offer to reimburse them for their fuel expenses. Many inspectors will be able to take digital pictures for you so be sure to exchange e-mail addresses.

Not all parts of the attached inspection may be possible to complete and the buyer should understand that this is a friendly opinion, it carries no legal weight whatsoever. Buyers should always retain the right to reject the purchase after an inspection. As always, "Buyer Beware".
